

VICTORIAN IMPACTS

22-23 June 2017

A two-day event at the Universities of Glasgow and Strathclyde, organised under the aegis of the Scottish Centre for Victorian and Neo-Victorian Studies

This event brings together Victorianists interested in the relationships between universities and civic, regional or professional communities in both the nineteenth century and the present day. The first day will focus on investigating how knowledge moved between these groups in Victorian Britain. The second day will be an opportunity to think about the ways in which current Victorianist research projects are dealing with impact and knowledge mobility.

Speakers include:

Prof. Mark Llewellyn (Director of Research, AHRC; Strathclyde)

Prof. John Bowen (University of York)

Dr Rosemary Golding (Open University)

Dr Heike Jöns (Loughborough University)

Dr Lucinda Matthews-Jones (Liverpool John Moores University)

Attendance is free. To register, please email Elsa Richardson: elsa.richardson@strath.ac.uk

For further information, please email Alice Jenkins: alice.jenkins@gla.ac.uk

University
of Glasgow

University of Strathclyde
Glasgow

S-C-V-S

SCOTTISH CENTRE FOR VICTORIAN AND NEO-VICTORIAN STUDIES